

Café curtains can provide a degree of privacy while still letting light into the room and allowing you to see out through the window. This may be a good option for a window facing a busy street or a bathroom window where privacy is important.